Petite Sirah

This five acre block takes its name from solidified magma, high in magnesium content, fractured to form the devigorating soils found here. Long a source of remarkable Petite Sirah, this moderately dense planting creates small vines, clusters and berries that are deeply hued and offer lovely blackberry flavors, unusually polished tannins and exquisite balance.

Tasting Notes:

The Serpentine Meadow Petite Sirah is dark and opulent. This wine is full-bodied with notes of coffee, blackberry pie and baking spices. The oak profile gives this wine a kick of leather, caramel and floral notes that leave a lingering finish.
